

Study shows expressway needed for city of Upland

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Without completion of the Foothill Freeway or a major east-west expressway across north Upland, the city may be forced to drastically reduce future commercial and industrial development to prevent traffic congestion.

That is the conclusion reached by a recently completed traffic study of Mountain Avenue presented to the Upland Planning Commission Thursday night by City Engineer Fred Blanchard.

Blanchard said the study — conducted by the traffic consulting firm of Mohle, Perry and Associates of Fullerton, with the city's assistance — has "far-reaching implications" for Upland.

He said that without the Foothill Freeway or a northern expressway — a highway with traffic interrupted by few intersections — Upland would have to make a major change in the city's general plan.

Reading from a prepared statement, Blanchard said, "The magnitude of such a change to the general plan would be such as to have tremendous impact on the economic viability of the community."

"It would possibly greatly impede our ability to develop a balanced community."

Blanchard recommended any discussions by the city on commercial and industrial development on or near Mountain Avenue be held off until after the Nov. 7 election.

Voters in four area cities, including Upland, will be casting non-binding ballots on whether they want the Foothill Freeway completed.

Blanchard said a strong vote in Upland against completion of the freeway could be taken as a mandate to stop pursuing completion of Route 30 from La Verne to San Bernardino.

He added that without a major northern traffic corridor the city would need to re-examine the traffic element of its general plan, because Upland streets, particularly Mountain Avenue, could not carry the traffic generated by land designated for future commercial and industrial development.

A reduction in future business in Upland would jeopardize the city's ability to offset revenue lost through lower property taxes under Proposition 13 with Upland's share of sales tax dollars, Blanchard said.

The study was ordered in conjunction with a proposal for shopping and office complex on seven acres near the southeast corner of Mountain Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

Vanguard Companies, with offices in Cucamonga, is seeking a conditional-use permit for the proposed center. Current plans replace Vanguard's proposal for a controversial six-story center at the site.

The planning commission continued Vanguard's request until its Nov. 23 meeting.

The traffic study concludes, "If the Foothill Freeway as indicated on the city's general plan were operational, the magnitude of expected congestion at the critical Mountain Avenue intersections would be significantly mitigated due to directional redistribution of study area generated traffic."

Blanchard said some type of mass transit corridor or an expressway could serve the same purpose, reducing Mountain traffic, as the Foothill Freeway.

However, he indicated retaining the Route 30 corridor would be vital toward easing future traffic congestion.

Mike Matlock, Upland's assistant city manager for public services, said the city could apply state gas funds to purchasing Route 30 land.

But he said the city "couldn't begin to approach" the millions of dollars needed to buy the necessary right-of-way that remains in private ownership.

Blanchard noted Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, chairman of the Assembly Transportation Committee, told a Claremont audience Wednesday previously unexpected federal funds could be used to acquire land and build the freeway.

The traffic study projects that current and future development following present zoning, along Mountain Avenue would lead to 20,000-24,000 more vehicles daily using the street between the San Bernardino Freeway and Foothill Boulevard.

An increase of 16,000 vehicles daily could be expected north of Foothill once vacant land is built on, the study shows.

The city will continue to accept development plans for Mountain, but cannot say what prospects for eventual approval are pending the Nov. 7 vote and subsequent decisions on Route 30, Blanchard said.

Council, planners reopen battle over zone change

A request for a zone change on 12.5 acres at the northeast corner of Benson Avenue and 15th Street has reignited an unusually sharp conflict between the Upland City Council and Planning Commission dating back more than two years.

At issue is whether the vacant property currently owned by the West End Consolidated Land Co. should eventually be used for light industry, as the planning commission believes, or single-family homes, which have the support of the council.

Council members returned the debate to the commission for further consideration when they overruled the commission's Sept. 28 denial of the zone change.

The Mayer Group of Downey is seeking the change from agricultural use to zoning that would allow it to build 45 single-family homes.

Commissioners will hear a "focused" environmental assessment report outlining steps the developer would take to mitigate the impacts of surrounding land uses.

At its September meeting, the commission cited the development's potential incompatibility with its surroundings in denying the zone change, 6-0. On Oct. 4, members of the architectural commission expressed similar concerns.

Heavy traffic along Benson Avenue, a water pumping station on land just south of 16th Street, a rock quarry across the street on the west side of Benson and the lighted tennis courts of the Upland Racquet Club bordering the site to the east were among the planning commission's concerns.

However, residents of homes north of the tennis courts and east of the vacant land, once planned as a park, reiterated their strong support Oct. 16 for residential use before the council.

Superior Court Judge Richard Garner, who serves on the board of directors for the racquet club, said that zoning the property for residential use "would be only inviting trouble."

He told the council that new homes neighboring the tennis courts — which preceded homes in the area and are used as late as 10 p.m. — would lead to "present complaints against the club being magnified."

Residents responded that they bought their homes with full knowledge of the club's operations and incoming residents could do the same.

For its part, the council expressed some irritation at rehearsing the issue again, since it adopted a general plan designation last year for single-family homes.

Under state law, the zoning for the property must agree with the city's general plan.

The council sustained the appeal by The Mayer Group, 3-0. Mayor George Gibson and Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy abstained, citing possible conflict of interest because they represent the city on the land company board of directors.

Councilwoman Ina Petokas said she was "dissatisfied" with the commission and asked "why are they playing games with us?"

She later softened her criticism of the commission and noted the issue was decided when the general plan was changed.

"We fought it out then," Mrs. Petokas commented, adding the commission seemed to be trying to "see if we really meant it (designating the area for houses)."

Referring to the upcoming commission review, Councilman Bill Bottin asked, "Why do it again — why waste the time and money?"

City Attorney Donald Maroney said state law mandates such reviews when the council alters commission recommendations.

The commission recommended the property for light industry in a suggested general plan amendment in 1976. The council rejected that recommendation and designated the 12.5 acres for single-family residential use in 1977 after the issue had bounced between the commission and council.

Lack of funds and the proximity of the 22-acre Greenbelt Park to the south led Upland to no longer regard the Benson site as appropriate for a park, city officials said.

Commission Chairman Frank Carpenter reiterated the commission view this week that the land is ill-suited for residential use.

Legal bingo?

Only one license has been issued in Upland

Five months after bingo as a fundraising activity for non-profit groups first became legal in Upland, only one license has been issued in the city.

Fun After Fifty, a group for senior citizens, held Upland's first bingo game under an ordinance adopted this spring by the city council. Recreation Director Larry Thornburg said the games Oct. 18 drew about 70 persons to the Upland Community Center.

The parish council of St. Joseph's Church has voted 9-2 to apply for a license. Paul J. Soltis, president of the parent-teacher group at St. Joseph's School, was the principal supporter of legalized bingo when the council debated the ordinance.

He said the parish had held off seeking a license to conduct bingo games because construction had made the parish hall unavailable.

The West End Boys' Club submitted an application rejected in August due to problems with its building and has held off further pursuing a permit because the organization is currently without an executive director.

Otherwise, the game seems to have stirred little interest in Upland.

Donna Clifton, business license inspector for Upland, said the city received several phone inquiries after the ordinance was first passed in April by the city council, but little interest since.

When the council decided to have youth sports groups pay their own electrical bills earlier this month, bingo was mentioned by the council as one way the organizations could raise extra funds.

City officials and others point to a provision of Upland's ordinance restricting non-profit groups to holding bingo at their regular meeting places as one reason few have applied.

Thornburg noted most of the leagues do not own or lease a building suitable for conducting bingo. Although representatives of the groups have been asked if they are interested in the game, he said, none of the groups have so far replied.

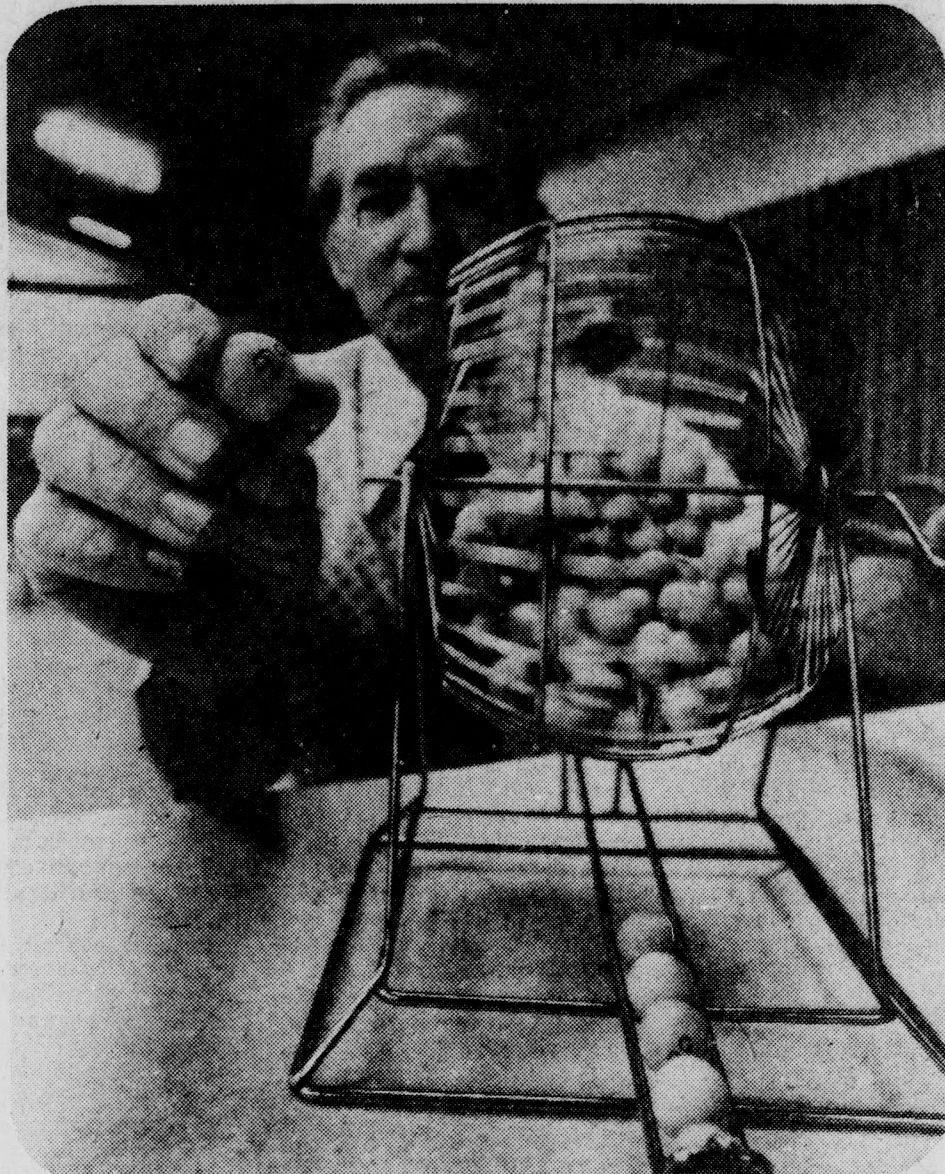

However, Thornburg said youth baseball leagues are now in their off season, when many elect new officers, and Pop Warner football and soccer leagues probably have already held or scheduled most of their season's fund-raisers.

He added that interest may pick up next spring "when word gets around that it's a good money maker."

Under the recreation department's current fee schedule, groups could rent a facility, such as Magnolia Recreation Center, for $30 for one bingo session a month or $75 for four if the ordinance is changed.

He said the city is considering adding an amendment to the ordinance if the leagues are interested.

The bingo ordinances of neighbor-

Testing his touch on a bingo device is Ray Rodgers, president of the Fun After Fifty Club, sponsored by the Upland Recreation Department. The club has become the first organization in Upland to obtain a bingo license. Bingo games will be conducted beginning Wednesday and will be offered on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at the Upland Community Center, 352 E. C St. Games will begin at 2 p.m. and continue until all cash prizes have been awarded, Rodgers said. Further information may be obtained by calling 985-0994. (Staff photo)

To employ 100

New Upland plant opens

An Upland plant expected to employ 100 persons has been opened by The Brearley Co., world's largest manufacturer of bathroom scales.

The firm is currently turning out 1,000 hampers a day in a 22,000-square-foot leased building at 1374 W. 9th St., site of its new office, warehousing and manufacturing facilities.

George L. Benzon, general manager of the new plant, said it now has 10 employees, a number expected to double by year's end and grow to 100 within five years.

Benzon said Upland was chosen as the location for the firm's West Coast plant because there is plenty of labor, and property taxes are lower than in Los Angeles County.

The Illinois-based company says it is expanding its manufacturing operations to the West Coast to reduce freight costs, speed delivery and increase manufacturing capacity.

Benzon said operating in Upland will also make it easier to supply autumnal tone hampers which are more popular in the West than in the East.

The company has two plants in Rockford, Ill., its headquarters, and one in Toronto, Canada.

Mini-boom predicted

Pipeline may boost West End economy

By GLENN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

The West End economy may be on the verge of a mini-boom caused by construction of an oil pipeline, an economist said at a business outlook conference last week.

But if the pipeline is not built, local economic activity is likely to slacken due to the combined effects of Proposition 13 and a housing construction slowdown, he said.

David G. Shulman, an economist and assistant professor of administration at the University of California, Riverside, presented a Riverside-San Bernardino counties economic forecast at a conference sponsored by the Riverside County Department of Development.

The pipeline he referred to is a 200-mile line which Standard Oil of Ohio wants to construct across Southern California to carry Alaskan oil to the central U.S.

The project would have a double impact on the local economy because it would cross Chino and Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana has a commitment to supply the 200 miles of steel pipe.

Thus, not only would workers be employed in construction of the pipeline but employment at Kaiser would be at a high level to produce the steel, Shulman said.

Whether the pipeline will be built may hinge on a Nov. 7 election measure in which Long Beach voters will decide whether to approve a pier leasing arrangement.

Shulman said the oil firm is spending $750,000 to win voter approval of the measure, which according to a recent poll was ahead by a 51 to 33 percent margin.

He said Standard also needs one more permit approval from the South Coast Air Quality Management District before it can proceed with the pipeline.

If the pipeline does cause a mini-boom, it would come on the heels of the local housing construction boom, which, Shulman's figures show, has been a major stimulator of local employment growth.

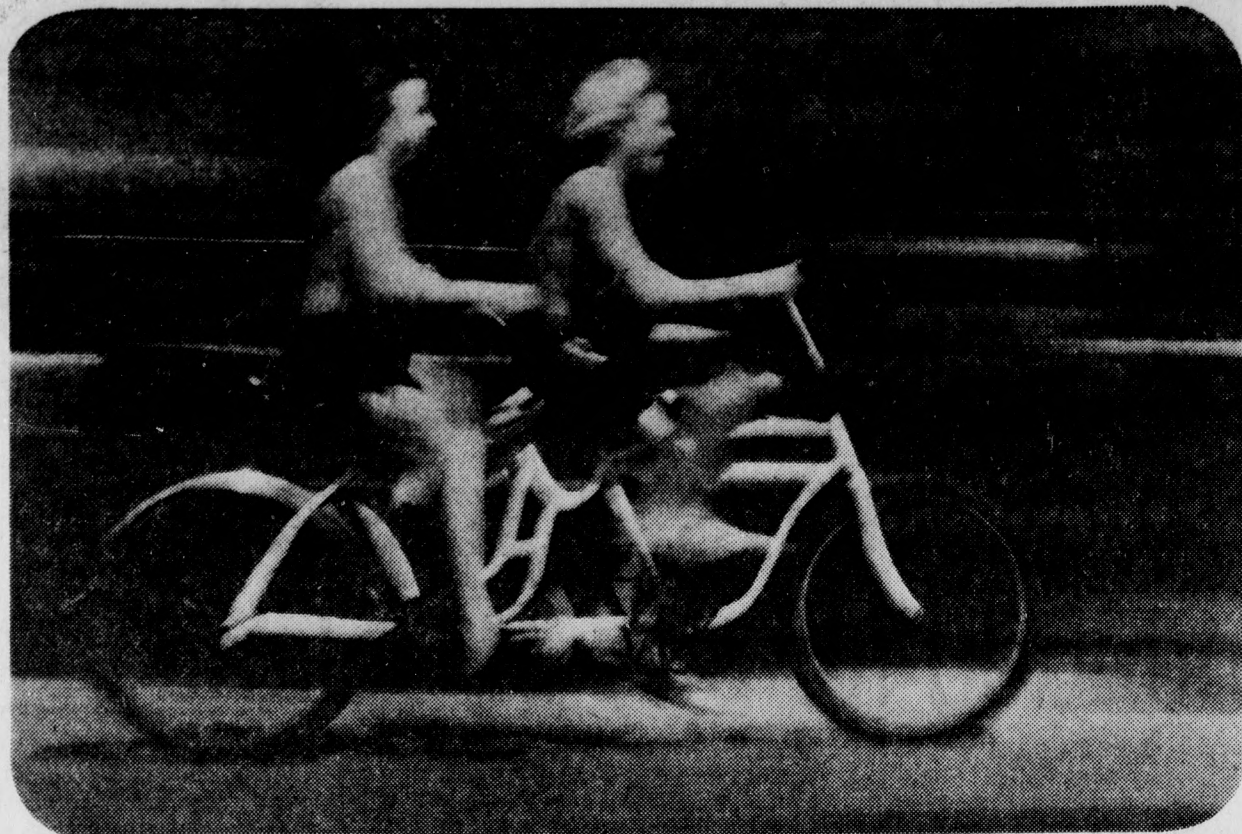

Shulman said housing construction employment is currently at a high level but recent building permit figures indicate that level of employment is not likely to continue.

He presented a graph which shows a spectacular rise in building permits a year ago as developers rushed to beat impending moratoriums.

As houses for which permits were obtained in that rush are completed, construction employment will begin to drop, he said.

Shulman said San Bernardino and Riverside counties have been especially hard hit by Proposition 13 because they have a high proportion of state and local government employees.

He said 8,000 of the 10,000 job gains reported in September the two county areas were in government, largely because education, employees, affected by summer school cancellation, returned to work.

Center at 4120 Marathon St. in Los Angeles, is a project of the Southern California Delta Gamma alumnae. Since the center's founding in 1938, it has operated entirely without state or federal aid.

The center offers a program of diversified services to meet the needs of blind and partially-sighted children, their parents and siblings.

Services include an infant development program, in which both parents and the infant are seen on a monthly or semi-monthly basis by a growth and development specialist. Offered without cost to the family, this service is designed to counsel parents on the use of tactile, auditory and kinesthetic stimulation to facilitate the child's development.

The pre-school program serves children between ages of 18 months and 7 years. A resident program also is available to children with special needs, individual psychotherapy is provided by a child psychiatrist and counseling for older blind children and their families.

Information on tickets for the dance that will benefit this center is available by calling 623-1558.

Theology school library holds historical items

By RITA BUSBY
Staff Writer

Max Chamberlain, 80, retired minister, picked up a tomahawk and said, "That doesn't look churchy."

Chamberlain was rummaging through the thousands of items, ranging from an 1878 hymnal to saddle bags used by Methodist circuit riders, now housed, but somewhat in disarray, at the School of Theology library in Claremont.

The library has become the repository of records, paraphernalia and old books for churches, some now defunct, in California and Arizona.

Chamberlain said collecting the items is a monumental job and help is needed, "preferably from some younger men," in putting the collection in order.

Also, Chamberlain hopes churches which have records stored away in attics, possibly in danger of fires, or simply left for destruction when the church closes, will get in contact with the theology library.

The theological library itself, which was constructed in 1969 is generally regarded as housing the finest collection in Biblical studies in the western United States.

A $350,000 ancient Biblical manuscript center, a portion of the library, was recently completed with the goal of housing every known text of the Jewish-Christian Bible known to exist today, according to head librarian, James Overbeck.

"It is hoped that eventually we'll have copies of all extant Biblical manuscripts, be they coptic from Egypt, Dead Sea scrolls or those from Germany and France," Overbeck said.

The copies would be microfilmed so scholars wouldn't have to travel all over the world to see the various manuscripts in their original forms.

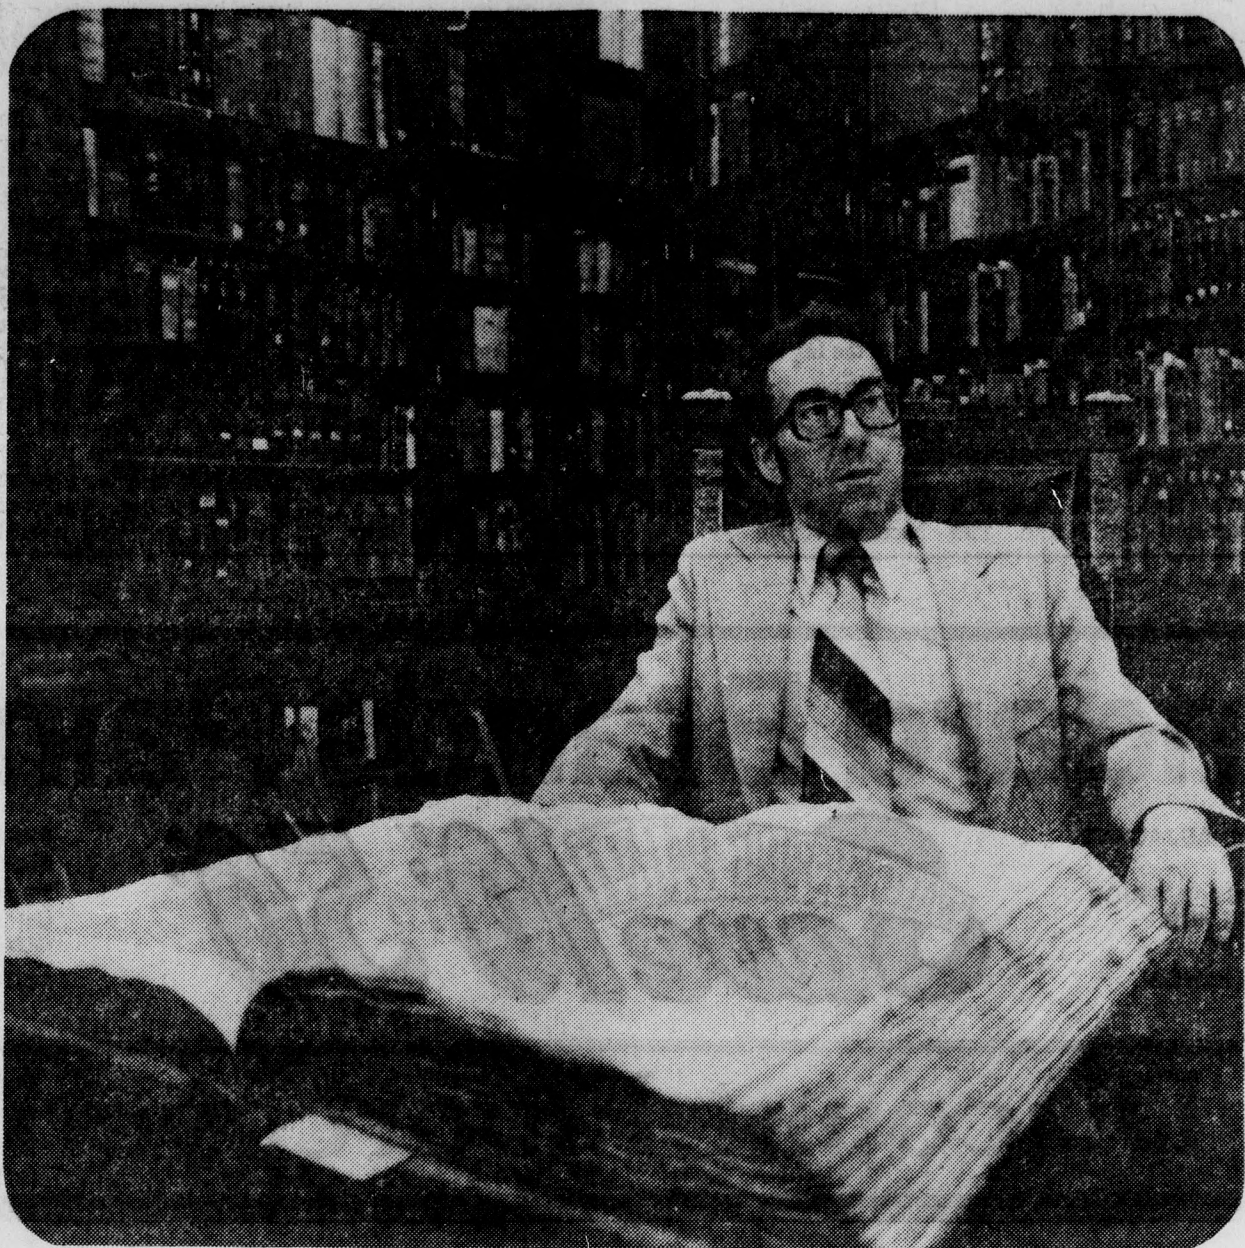

Overbeck said "probably the 20 or 30 most important Biblical scholars throughout the world have voiced interest in this project."

The library already contains 110,000 volumes in the field of religion and theology.

The oldest volume contained at the library is a Greek papyrus dating back to the early centuries of Christianity, Overbeck said.

Also contained there is a copy of Thomas Aquinas's Summa Theologica, published in 1474 and printed in Basel, Switzerland, by Michael Wessler.

A first edition of the Book of Mormon, 1830, is in the collection along with many books on the development of

Seniors find friends, care at health fair

By RITA BUSBY
Staff Writer

Approximately 2,000 persons from 28 cities turned out for the third annual Senior Citizens Information and Health Fair which took place in Claremont last week.

Statistics for the fair, held at Taylor Hall on Indian Hill Boulevard, are impressive, with a total of 1,410 persons administered to. Of those, 832 flu shots and 180 glaucoma, 90 foot and 300 blood pressures tests were given.

But seniors found something else at the fair — companionship.

John Lynch and Marge Lloyd, both of Upland, sat with friends beneath a tree in the afternoon sun as entertainers performed around the patio. They mused, "Why do we come here? There's no place else to go."

They joked and chatted with friends, one of whom was a neighbor of Lynch's—a woman who hadn't been anywhere for three years.

Alberta Guenette, that friend from Upland said, "I think this is great—just wonderful. Lots of people can't afford these services."

She was speaking of the information available at the fair from 40 local, county and state agencies, who sent representatives to man booths stocked with information concerning services available for seniors.

Fair sponsors said the need for information is one of the main purposes of the fair.

"A high ratio of senior citizens live in this area, but for many the agencies who serve their needs are difficult to locate as they are scattered throughout Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties," they said.

Labor complaint filed against clinic

A complaint containing a contention that employees were fired for union activities has been filed against operators of health plan clinics in Pomona, Ontario, Chino and La Puente.

The charge has been denied by an attorney for the operators, Family Health Medical Group Inc. and General Medical Centers Inc., both with administrative offices in Pomona.

A hearing on the complaint is scheduled before an administrative law judge Nov. 13 in Los Angeles, but both sides say a settlement of the issues may be reached before then.

Ron Bitoni, assistant director of the United Steelworkers of America district office in West Covina, said the clinic operators have agreed to reinstate some discharged employees.

David Bacon, Los Angeles labor attorney representing the firms, said the individuals involved had been working as employees, began work as independent contractors on their request or otherwise and now want reinstatement with back pay.

The complaint was filed by the National Labor Relations Board following an investigation of allegations by the union.

James Scott, acting regional director of the NLRB office in Los Angeles, said the complaint also alleges that the operators interfered with the rights of employees to organize, discriminated against employees because of union activities and refused to bargain following a union representation election.

You and Your Pet

Benefits of horse grooming

By Robert L. Stear

Grooming your horse provides a number of benefits besides a good-looking mount. Brushing stimulates circulation, distributes oil from glands under the skin, and maintains muscle tone. It also gives you a chance to get to know your horse a little better.

Properly done, a good grooming job takes at least half an hour and is hard work.

For a novice, the tendency is to start with the back and sides and work down toward the feet. Unfortunately, by the time the feet have been reached, fatigue may have set in and the temptation becomes great to rush to finish the job.

This can be a costly error-foot trouble in a horse can be an expensive illness to correct. So begin grooming with the feet while you're fresh.

To start, face your horse, lean your shoulder against its left side, and push against the horse. The pressure will become a cue for the horse to pick up its foot. Until the horse gets the idea, slide your hand down the leg and pull up the hoof.

Hold the hoof at the level of your knee and use a pick (a special pointed tool) to dig out all foreign matter until the entire sole becomes visible.

Each hoof should be carefully cleaned so there is no debris to bruise the "frog," the soft undersurface of the hoof. As you work, check for a foul odor or flaking of the frog.

These are signs of thrush, a condition that develops after a horse stands in a damp, dirty stall or muddy pasture for a long time. A horse with an undetected case of thrush will rapidly go lame and need veterinary attention.

After you finish the horse's feet, gather together the basic tools you will need for grooming the body: currycomb, dandy brushes, sponges and towel.

The currycomb is used to loosen and remove dirt from the horse's coat. Start behind the ears at the left side (usually called the "near" side) and move the currycomb against the lay of the hair to bring the dirt to the surface. Progress down the neck and toward the tail until most of the coat is free of dirt.

Pay special attention to areas where riding tack rubs against the skin behind the ears, the middle back, the middle belly and between the front legs.

For tender areas like the face, rear belly and legs below the knee, a softer brush (the dandy brush) is necessary. A stiff dandy brush can also be used to smooth out the mane and tail.

After you have gone over the entire skin surface with a dandy brush again to remove any soil left behind, spread the skin's natural oil through the hair with a soft clean towel.

Last, wipe around the eyes and nose with a small damp sponge. Use a second sponge to wipe down the dock, or area at the base of the tail.

No one can disagree with the statement that breast milk is the normal food for a baby, suited to the infant's nourishment and probably the best food available.

All mammals — those animals who bring forth their young alive and nurse them from their breasts — have been dependent since time immemorial on this source of nutriment for the infant. Each species produces milk best adapted to its own offspring — the baby seal or walrus would starve on a diet of human milk.

Only in comparatively recent times have acceptable substitutes for breast milk been developed. Earlier in this century, certainly up to 1920, so little was known about preparation of infant formula, sterilization and refrigeration that mothers were instructed to nurse their babies through the second summer of life.

The risk of an inadequate supply or actual starvation was less than that of "summer diarrhea" or other infections, including tuberculosis, due to contaminated cow's milk. Before 1920, about half of artificially fed young infants died.

Health Tips

Advantages of breast feeding

By 1920 substitutes for breast milk had been devised which were sufficiently successful that breast feeding was almost abandoned in the United States for a time. It was easy to know exactly what the baby received from a bottle and to see him or her apparently thrive on artificial feeding; consequently, some of the advantages of maternal nursing were ignored.

In recent years, there has been a return to breast feeding by many mothers. Unfortunately, the case for this has been so exaggerated that many mothers who for one reason or another resort to artificial feeding are made to feel deprived, unnatural and guilty.

There are a number of legitimate reasons for an infant to be formula-fed.

The mother who works outside the home or the one who is ill may be forced to abandon nursing; some mothers are simply unwilling to breastfeed, even though they have perfectly normal maternal feelings in every other way.

Some mothers are unable to produce enough milk. Many of this last group are so over-conscientious that they are reluctant to resort to formula feedings.

Most women, however, are able to nurse a child if encouraged to do so. In many cases, such encouragement is not provided and the tendency is to rely on formula feeding, which makes it comparatively simple to see that the baby receives an easily estimated caloric intake whereas the supply from the breast is a little more uncertain.

The advantages of breast feeding should not be ignored. It furnishes a perfect food and eliminates the need for all the fuss of formula preparation.

Nursing even helps the readjustment of the uterus after delivery; however, it is not an efficient method of contraception as is often believed. Most of all, nursing provides a warm and intimate relationship between mother and baby which helps to encourage the future adaptation of mother and child.

The psychological matters, however, have been overstated. There are many ways in which a mother can satisfy both herself and her child. If she has normal maternal instincts — and this is a biologic phenomenon common to mothers of every species — she can have all the warmth of her relationship to the baby without nursing.

About 25,000 registered voters have been canceled since the June primary election and some of these may have been canceled mistakenly based on information from the U.S. Postal Service, Registrar of Voters Bill Clinton said.

Clinton is urging all registered voters who did not receive their sample ballots to call his office immediately to verify their registration and polling place.

Clinton said the mixup occurred shortly after the June primary election, when residency confirmation letters were mailed to all voters who did not cast ballots.

The post office was requested to furnish the registrar with the voter's new address if the voter had moved.

The last of the sample ballots was mailed last week and Clinton is urging those who did not receive a sample ballot to call his office at 383-1811 to verify their registration.

Workshop for helping hearing impaired slated

If one out of every 10 people were blind or suffered some other severe handicap, their problem would be obvious.

Deafness or impaired hearing has reached that statistic, but unfortunately it is a silent handicap — silence for those who suffer, and silent to those who have normal hearing.

In recognition of this problem which now affects well over 14 million people in the U.S. alone, Chaffey College community services department and a number of organizations and churches in Ontario have joined forces to conduct a workshop dealing with hearing-impaired persons and to support the Hearing Aid Bank established last month by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches and the First Baptist Church of Ontario.

The day long workshop is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 18 at the First Baptist Church, 1305 Euclid Ave., Ontario. The sessions, the first to be held in the West End, are geared to present the latest developments and techniques in combatting the deafness handicap.

Dr. Howard P. House, internationally renowned otologist who pioneered the surgical implant procedure now being used to restore hearing, will be the keynote speaker.

Individuals and groups who work with or who are associated with hearing-impaired persons will attend the workshop. Additionally, senior citizens — a group that suffers most from hearing problems — are also invited.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and there will be a $2 workshop fee, which also includes lunch.

In addition to Dr. House, Dr. Helen Kennedy, retired head of the department of special education and audiology of California State University - Los Angeles, will discuss "living with a hearing loss." Dr. Kennedy, who has a hearing impairment, has 40 years of experience as a teacher, reading consultant and school psychologist.

Roger Sagouspe, coordinator of community services for the First Baptist Church, will describe the operation of the Hearing Aid Bank. The bank is a non-denominational project for adults on fixed incomes who can't afford the cost of a new hearing aid.

Afternoon sessions will include a panel discussion on how to help the hearing-impaired person and services that are available in the West End for the deaf and hearing-impaired. Additional sessions will include sign language and lip reading.

Further information on the Nov. 18 workshop and the hearing aid bank can be obtained by calling 986-4533.

Three 'Flu Fridays' planned by county

For the fourth year, the San Bernardino County Public Health Department will offer free influenza immunizations to persons considered at high risk; namely people who are 55 and older and those persons six months of age and older who have a chronic disease. Immunizations will be offered at selected Public Health Department offices on three "Flu Fridays," Nov. 3, 10, and 17. Dr. Louis Mahoney, director of public health, announced.

This year, the vaccine will be available on these dates only. There will not be walk-in clinics after these dates, as there have been in past years.

The vaccine this year will be a combination of Type A/Russian, Type A/Texas and Type B/Hong Kong vaccines. "It will not contain Swine Flu vaccine," according to Dr. Mahoney.

In spite of all the publicity about Swine Flu vaccine and Guillain-Barre Syndrome two years ago, it is important to remember that influenza has killed many thousands of people each time there has been an outbreak. Statistics from the Federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta for the 1968-69 flu epidemic show that an estimated 33,000 people died of influenza. This epidemic was Type B influenza.

Within the past year, there have been many outbreaks of Texas and Russian flu, both of which are Type A influenzas, in the United States. During these outbreaks, numerous deaths from influenza occurred. In all of these epidemics, the deaths occurred mainly among chronically ill children and adults and among persons over 55 years of age. These persons are thus considered to be "high risk" and it is very important for them to be immunized against influenza.

This year, chronically ill persons under 26 years of age will need a second dose of the vaccine approximately one month after the initial vaccination in order to get the most protection against influenza.

The vaccine for these people will contain the same three vaccines as the general vaccine but will have an increased dose of Type A/Russian vaccine. It is felt that the strain of Russian flu which is expected this year is related to the flu which occurred in 1947-48, which means that people born after those years are unlikely to have any immunity to this flu type. Special arrangements will be made in December to provide the second dose of influenza vaccine only to those chronically ill persons under 26 years of age.

If you are in the high risk category, set aside some time on November 3, 10, or 17 to protect yourself against influenza by receiving your free vaccination at one of the sites below:

Chaffey district trustees appoint

Alta Loma attorney to board

By MICHAEL DAVIS
Staff Writer

An Alta Loma attorney was appointed Thursday night to fill a vacancy on the Chaffey Joint Union High School District board.

The four trustees voted to select Curtiss D. Bonneville to replace former board member H. J. Carnine, who resigned earlier this month to devote more time to his job.

Bonneville was chosen from a list of 13 candidates for the seat. He practices law in West Covina.

He will serve as a non-voting board member for the next 30 days according to state law. During that time voters may circulate petitions if they wish to protest the appointment.

Bonneville will become a full board member at the end of the waiting period unless petitions force a special election.

He will serve out Carnine's term on the board which expires in November 1979.

Prior to the selection, the Chaffey board members told the roomful of candidates at district headquarters which criteria they would use to make their nomination.

Board President Adrian Chalfant

said he wanted a candidate with "hands-on experience" about the Chaffey district. He said the candidate should understand budgets and financial statements and have "a broad understanding of this district as a whole."

Board members Ray Sarrio, Martha Chapman and Charles Uhalley voiced similar concerns.

When each trustee was asked to pick three top nominees, Bonneville's name appeared on all lists. The board felt the second most qualified contender was Lila McPherson, who has volunteered to serve on several special study committees for the Chaffey district.

Bonneville was chosen unanimously in a final vote.

His involvement in district affairs includes a key role in the ACTION committee that tried to help the Chaffey district promote a bond election that would have raised money to pay for construction of a second permanent high school in Rancho Cucamonga.

Though the proposal was soundly defeated by voters across most of the Chaffey district, the measure passed easily in the Rancho Cucamonga area.

The Chaffey board planned at its last meeting to accept audience comments about the candidates Thursday, then retreat to executive session for private talks about the nominees. They were to reconvene in public to make their final selection and vote.

During public interview sessions held Monday, Bonneville said he would use his knowledge of law and economics — the two subjects in which he holds college degrees — to help the district retain and possibly expand the little local control of schools left by the state.

He said he would enjoy sorting out the various financial problems caused by Proposition 13.

After The Daily Record pointed out that such an action would be a violation of the state Government Code the board decided to hold all deliberations in public.

Bonneville also said in his interview that he chaired a district subcommittee on science courses during revision of graduation requirements and recommended the final compromise version where science units were increased from 10 to 15 units.

Bonneville, 37, is a graduate of Chaffey High School and Chaffey College.

Arthritis march set for February

The Arthritis Foundation is rallying a major task force of thousands of volunteers throughout San Bernardino County to join in its annual "Neighborhood March Against Arthritis" to be conducted in February.

Mrs. A. Lucile Murray of Rancho Cucamonga, who is serving as co-chairman of the march with Mrs. Quenten Norquist of Sun City, pointed out that contributions given in the door-to-door appeal are vital to the patient care, research and community service programs provided to victims of arthritis in the San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

"The Foundation is recruiting 10,000 marchers to call on residents for their support of the once-a-year drive," Mrs. Norquist said.

"That support will help fund clinics at Loma Linda University Medical Center and Riverside General Hospital where arthritis patients can receive help."

"In addition, public contributions make possible such local community services as the Foundation-funded pool therapy programs, a movement education workshop, home nursing care and transportation as well as the on-going research being conducted at Loma Linda University, USC, UCLA, and UC Irvine," Mrs. Murray said.

Volunteers who can give an hour or two of their time to call on residents in specific areas of their home communities should call the Arthritis Foundation at 688-6705.

Council names new president

The newly installed president of the Pomona Valley Council of Churches is the first lay person to assume the office.

Dawn Hall, one of the owners of Chino Christian Supply Bookstore, was named Oct. 26 to head the 11-year-old organization of churches in an area extending from Chino and Etiwanda to Walnut and San Dimas.

Mrs. Hall is a Presbyterian, maintaining her membership at the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Ontario.

Receiving recognition at the council's annual meeting was radio station K-LIT for its contribution to ongoing ministry locally and particularly for work with the council on "Pomona Valley Focus."

The Greater Pomona Housing Development Corp. made an award to Dr. Robert Kelley who acted as a leader in bringing to completion the 170-unit apartment complex for senior citizens.

The fourth Ecumenical Service Award - given in recognition of ecumenical outreach which crosses denominational lines - was presented to the Rev. Leland Wilson, pastor of the La Verne Church of the Brethren. Wilson has served as president of the council for two years and was the first chairman of the Walk for the Hungry.

The Pomona Valley Council of Churches' annual walk for its entire five year history has been the largest walk in the country, having the most participants and raising the largest sum of money.

Lenore Brashler, chairwoman for this year's walk, led in a service of celebration, acknowledging the cumulative total of all the walks: more than $230,000. CROP, the church World Service Hunger arm, has created a film of the Pomona Valley Walk. This film is used for national publicity.

In a slide and cassette tape program Executive Director Audrey Lightbody introduced some of the council's new programs: athletic league offering softball, volleyball, and basketball; a hunger task force which is developing an advocacy program; and a task force on the elderly.

The meeting closed with a shared communion experience led by Dr. Terry Van Hook, pastor of the Cucamonga United Methodist Church.

Officers named to head the council include the Rev. Richard Bunce, vice president; Dr. Florence Crago, secretary; and Virgil Wilkinson, treasurer.

Department chairpersons are Edward Girard, business affairs; Dr. Mary Ellen Kilsby, Christian education; the Rev. Robert Walker, communications; Dr. David Edwards, membership; Lenore Brashler, social concerns; and the Rev. Michael Higgs, worship and public events.

Seventh-day Adventist

Californian Neal C. Wilson, currently vice president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, has been elected president of the world church. He succeeds Robert H. Pierson who has announced his retirement for health reasons after serving as president for 13 years.

The 58-year-old Wilson was named to the church's top post by the "Annual Council." He was chosen unanimously by the council and has extensive overseas experience.

BANK OF AMERICA Introduces The Interest/Checking Plan.

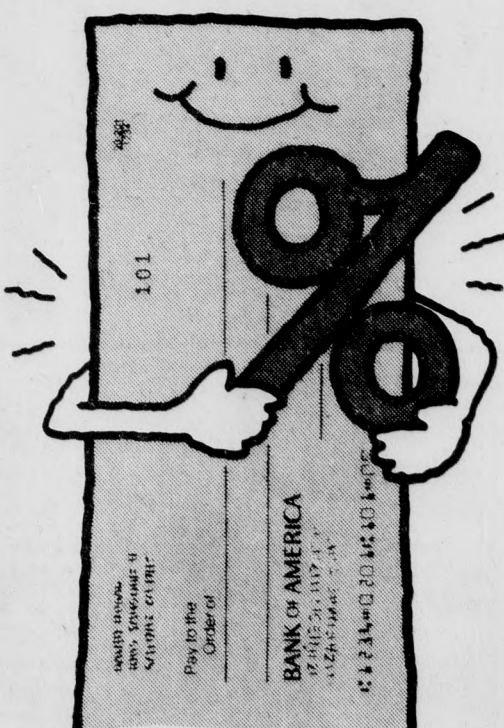

Starting November 1st, we're offering Californians a unique kind of checking plan: Our Interest/Checking Plan.

What's new about it? Several things. The Interest/Checking Plan is a checking account with a special savings account attached so that the money you would normally use for writing checks will earn a full 5% interest, compounded daily.

When you write a check, the amount of the check is automatically transferred from the special savings account back to the checking account. Depending on the size of the balance you keep, the interest on your special savings account can cover your Interest/Checking Plan service charges and provide extra income, too.

To open an Interest/Checking Plan, you need a $500 minimum deposit at Bank of America. After that, no minimum balance is required. There's a $3.00 monthly service charge, plus a 10 cent charge for each check paid. Incidentally, both these service charges are waived if a $2,000 minimum balance is maintained.

Now, if this plan isn't right for you, Bank of America offers a variety of other checking plans for you to choose from. So come to Bank of America and let's talk checking.

Hollywood salute planned by KABC

LOS ANGELES — KABC Talkradio 79's Carole Hemingway will be joined at the microphone by Hollywood notables James Bacon, Vernon Scott and Mike Sims for her star-studded salute to Hollywood's 75th anniversary Nov. 10, when the winner of the station's "Hollywood Slogan Contest" will be announced.

Celebrity judges Hugh Hefner, Alice Cooper, Gene Autry and Monty Hall will select the slogan for Hollywood from thousands of entries submitted during October by KABC Talkradio listeners. The winning slogan's creator will receive a trip for two to Diamond Head in Hawaii, and a chance to ride with Hemingway in Hollywood's annual Santa Claus Lane Parade, broadcast worldwide on Nov. 26.

Seventy-five runners-up will be KABC Talkradio's special guests at the unveiling of the new "Hollywood" sign in the hills above the city, which will be telecast by CBS-TV Nov. 11. In addition, the runners-up will receive a Hollywood "histograph," by artist Gene Burke, which details the history of Hollywood filmmaking as far back as 1903. And each will receive a special 75th anniversary commemorative teddy bear from the Ideal Toy Co.

The slogan contest grew out of Hemingway's notion that if such cities as Reno, "The Biggest Little City in the World," and Philadelphia, "The City of Brotherly Love," could have slogans, why not Hollywood, one of the world's most well-known and loved cities?

Highlighting the celebration will be a special broadcast by Hemingway on Nov. 10 on "Hollywood: Then and Now." The 7 to 10 p.m. program will feature Hollywoodphiles James Bacon, syndicated columnist; Vernon Scott, Hollywood editor, United Press International; and Mike Sims, executive director, Hollywood Chamber of Commerce.

Dance Theater of Harlem performs a scene from "Dougla," a ballet by Geoffrey Holder, which will be presented during the local engagement Nov. 6-12 at Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena.

Special burglary investigating squad coping with shoplifters

By RITA BUSBY
Staff Writer

Shoplifting is big business. When it involves professional "boosters" working hand-in-hand with professional fences, it enters the major leagues of felonies instead of the usual petty theft category.

A special burglary investigation and surveillance team, drawn from 10 police and sheriff's agencies, has been responsible for the return of more than $300,000 in stolen merchandise "boosted" by these major league shoplifters in the past two years.

The cities of Claremont, Pomona and La Verne are included in this special agency.

The agency, East Valley Burglary Investigation Team (EVBIT), modeled along lines similar to undercover narcotics agencies, includes a full-time police officer from each of the participating agencies.

Lt. Bill Flynn, in charge of the operation, which operates out of a West Covina office, said the major achievement of the team, or "task force," is the evidence gathered which has resulted in a 93 percent conviction rate.

The operation is chiefly funded by a federal grant, with the state and cities involved picking up 10 percent of operational costs.

EVBIT is one of seven multi-jurisdictional teams in the state working in their respective areas on the burglary problem.

Flynn said the groups credit their high conviction rates to a "pro-active" instead of a "reactive" approach to law enforcement.

The pro-active approach involves officers dealing with burglars in an undercover capacity or by use of modern surveillance equipment to monitor burglaries being committed.

The burglaries involved, however, aren't the usual house burglary that is committed by breaking into a home or business, generally when the occupants are gone.

These burglaries involve what is normally a petty theft stemming from shoplifting at markets or department stores.

However, the type of shoplifter the task force is after is the professional with a fixed fencing operation.

Flynn said it is difficult to prosecute the professional shoplifter because normally shoplifting falls into the "petty theft" category, which is a misdemeanor.

But through the undercover work and surveillance, prior intent can be proven and the suspect can be charged with a felony.

As an example, Flynn discussed a recent case in Claremont involving a 37-year-old man arrested for stealing approximately 20 cartons of cigarettes from a supermarket.

"He was a heroin addict who supported his habit by 'boosting' and had hit four other stores before being arrested at the fifth one," Flynn said.

"When you've got pictures of the guy stealing the stuff and turning it over to accomplices you can prove prior intent," he said. "That sort of evidence is hard to beat in court."

As well as surveying the burglar, undercover agents spend much of their time trying to crack fencing operations.

Additionally, the burglary task force works closely with narcotics agents. "Because we find that more than 90 percent of those arrested are supporting a narcotics habit," Flynn said.

Board to discuss disability services

The board plans, coordinates and encourages the development of services for persons with developmental disabilities.

The other topic to be discussed will be "Inland Counties Regional Center Budgets and Purchase of Vocational Functioning Services."

The Developmental Disabilities Area Board 12 will hold its meeting 9 a.m. at the Inland Counties Regional Center, 814 N. Arrowhead.

Workshop to be held

If one of every 10 people were blind or suffered some other severe handicap, their problem would be obvious. Deafness or impaired hearing has reached that statistic, but unfortunately it is a silent handicap — silence for those who suffer, and silent to those who have normal hearing.

In recognition of this problem which now affects more than 14 million people in the U.S. alone, Chaffey College Community Services Department and a number of organizations and churches in Ontario have joined forces to conduct a workshop dealing with hearing-impaired persons and to support a hearing aid bank that was established last month by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches and the First Baptist Church of Ontario.

The day-long workshop is scheduled for Nov. 18 at the First Baptist Church, 1305 Euclid Avenue, Ontario. The sessions, the first to be held in the West End, are geared to present the latest developments and techniques in combating the deafness handicap. Dr. Howard P. House, internationally renowned otologist who pioneered the surgical implant procedure now being used to restore hearing, will be the keynote speaker.

Campaign News, Notes

Endorsed

Gubernatorial hopeful Evelle Younger has been endorsed for election by the board of directors of the Association for Los Angeles Deputy Sheriffs. President Oliver G. Renner made the announcement.

Award

Congressman Del Clawson has received the "watchdog of the treasury" award from National Associated Businessmen Inc.

He received the NAB's gold bulldog by voting for a 100 percent rating on bills the group said would "reduce wasteful spending."

Proposition J

Low-rent housing proposal

Proposition J authorizes Los Angeles County to seek funds from the federal government and the state of California to acquire, develop, and construct 5,000 low-rent housing units for senior citizens, the handicapped and families needing rental assistance.

Studies show that 90,446 renter households earn so little that they require housing assistance, according to County Community development officials.

Under this program low-income families, senior citizens, or the handicapped would only pay up to 25 percent of their income for rent.

Passage of Proposition J will provide vitally needed housing at no cost to local taxpayers. This program will in no way affect the county's tax rate or in any other way adversely affect the fiscal position of the county, a county representative said and added the county housing authority has no taxing power.

All units will be built in the unincorporated areas of the county, and excludes all incorporated cities. Development will be scattered throughout the county, and there will be no more than 20 units to a site.

Structures will be designed for compatibility with the surrounding area and will not include any high-rise buildings, the representative said.

Support

Retiring Congressman Del Clawson (R-33) has endorsed the candidacy of Republican Wayne Grisham. The district includes Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights.

Endorsed

The Los Angeles County Grand Jurors Association has endorsed county

Proposition A on the November ballot.

Approval by voters would allow the county to contract with private firms to perform county work.

Association President Patricia Yeomans said members voted unanimously to support the proposition.

"Passage of Proposition A will save the county millions of taxpayers' dollars as well as providing economic and efficient service to the public," she said.

Initiative

Assemblyman Bill Lancaster (R-62) has announced support for an initiative to place a constitutional limit on government spending in California.

A coalition called "Spirit of 13 Inc." recently launched a petition drive to gather 500,000 signatures and qualify the spending limit initiative for the California ballot.

"This August the Legislature failed for the third time to approve our spending limit. The initiative process may be the only way to stop runaway growth in government," said Lancaster who is running for re-election.

Endorsed

Rep. Jim Lloyd (D-35) has been endorsed for re-election by Howard Jarvis. Lloyd said he had not sought Jarvis' endorsement and added, "He must be basing his approval on my activity for the past four years in support of reduction in government spending."

Opposition

The Community Congress of San Bernardino County has voted to oppose Proposition 6 as a "violation of the constitutional rights of all persons."

A group representative said the proposition's passage would bring "large and unnecessary costs" upon taxpayers and school districts.

The community congress consists of community-based organizations working for the enhancement of human life in San Bernardino County.

Endorsed

The California League of Conservation Voters has announced endorsement of Sandy Baldonado, candidate for the 62nd Assembly District. Spokesman for the

Palm Springs offers a lot to youngsters

PALM SPRINGS — "Where can we take the kids?" That is a question becoming easier to answer in this Southern California desert resort town once considered a huge sandbox only for the wealthy, the retired, the Jet Set and the Hollywood crowd.

It used to be that golf, tennis and sunning were the main forms of recreation for Palm Springs visitors of all ages.

Those activities still thrive here, but they have been joined by dozens of others thanks to the area's emergence as a more family-oriented resort destination.

"This isn't an amusement park where kids have things done for them," says Thomas D. Hanlon, executive director of the Palm Springs Convention and Visitors Bureau.

But it offers great opportunities for children to make their own fun and excitement.

Most of the Palm Springs attractions listed here offer something for adults as well as young people, so parents aren't faced with time on their hands while the kids are romping.

PALM SPRINGS AERIAL TRAMWAY: This is the top visitor attraction in the desert. In about 14 minutes, an 80-passenger tram whisks you from palm trees on the desert floor to pine trees at the 8,516 foot level of towering Mt. San Jacinto. The ride itself is a thriller and the views on the way up and at the Mountain Station are awe-inspiring. If the kids get tired of hiking on the paved trails or through the woods, they can go inside the Alpine Lodge to play pinball or watch a free film on how the tram was built. There's also full cafeteria service inside and a dining terrace outside, complete with hungry chipmunks. Year-round, it's 40 degrees cooler at the Mountain Station than it is at the bottom, so visitors bundle up before leaving the warm desert floor in winter, and don sweaters in summer to enjoy the refreshing drop in temperature.

CLARKSTON GOLF CENTER: The only miniature golf course in the area shares this new recreational complex with a 9-hole, par 32 executive course, an amusement/pinball center, automatic baseball and tennis practice lanes, putting green, driving range and clubhouse. The entire center is open to the public, and it's fast becoming a favorite with local youngsters.

MOORTEN BOTANICAL GARDEN: More than 2,000 varieties of plants from the world's deserts thrive in this four-acre garden/nursery. Mrs. Pat Moorten and her husband, "Cactus Slim," live in a castle-like home on the grounds, and delight in explaining the wildlife and plantlife which inhabit their exotic landscape. It's a great place to buy a cactus and learn about the surprising abundance of life that thrives in the seemingly harsh desert environment.

PALM SPRINGS DESERT MUSEUM: Here is a way to learn about the desert without leaving downtown Palm Springs. The new $8.5 million museum features extensive displays about the local desert, including dioramas so lifelike you'll swear you're really outside. There are also permanent and changing exhibits of American Indian artifacts, sculpture, graphics, and modern and classical art. Children and students are admitted free.

BIKE RIDING: Long before bicycling became a national mania, the City of Palm Springs had laid out miles of bike trails through some of the most scenic parts of town. There are now 14 miles of trails and five separate "loops" which take cyclists past celebrity homes, the museum, shops, through city parks and into the open desert. Bike trail maps are available free from each of the three bike rental shops in town, at City Hall and at the Convention and Visitors Bureau counter in the airport.

INDIAN CANYONS: Nearly every other square mile of land in Palm Springs is owned by the Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians. At the south end of town, past the resort hotels and other man-made structures, are easily accessible, verdant canyons ideal for family picnicking and exploring. The Cahuillas maintain the canyons and charge a nominal entry fee. Andreas Canyon usually has a cool stream, fed by mountain snows, flowing past stately Washingtonia filifera palm trees and spectacular rock formations. Nearby Palm Canyon is 15 miles long and yields many exciting views and discoveries for hikers. And Indian trading post (gift shop) is at the entrance to the canyon. Much of the canyon area can be reached on horseback (see next listing).

HORSEBACK RIDING: Smoke Tree, the only stable in Palm Springs, rents horses for novice to expert riders, with a guide provided at no additional cost. Miles of bridle trails take riders onto Indian reservation land and into the rugged foothills for unmatched views of the desert. Special arrangements can be made for group breakfasts and a western steak fry, complete with hayride.

TENNIS: The city maintains 27 public courts and all but nine of them are free. The pay-for-play courts are at the Palm Springs Tennis Center, where reservations can be made by phone (there's hardly ever a wait and the courts are night-lighted). Lighted courts also are available at Palm Springs High School, Ruth Hardy Park and DeMuth Park, where they may be a slight wait. All of the larger hotels have tennis courts or access to them. If you're staying at a condominium, you'll probably find courts there, too. And many private homes have a tennis court or two — so choose your friends wisely.

PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL: Also in Sunrise Plaza is Angel Stadium, winter home of the California Angels. The team plays exhibition games beginning in March and the prices are within any young fan's range.

CITY TOUR: Several sightseeing operators offer long and short tours of the city and desert area. They're a great way to learn a lot in a short time. Standard sights include celebrity homes, downtown landmarks, desert scenery and many of the places listed in this article.

Medicare claim aid available

When you're old and alone and sick, filling out a Medicare claim form can be a formidable task.

"That's one of the reasons we formed our Medicare speakers bureau, to help people learn how to handle all that paperwork," said Lindy Smith, coordinator of the program for Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California.

(Occidental administers the Medicare Part B program, which covers claims for physicians' services, outpatient services and certain other expenses, for nine Southern California counties.)

"Of course, it helps us too," she added. "Because it gets us out from behind our desks and into the field to meet face to face with the people whose claims we process."

"It helps us see them as human beings rather than as numbers on a claim form."

"Our speakers bureau program is the first and only one of its type in the West, and possibly in the entire nation," added Peter D. Mills, vice president and chief Medicare administrator for Occidental.

Since the program was launched in March of 1977 with an appearance before Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley's Council on the Aging, members of the speakers bureau have appeared before more than 7,000 persons belonging to more than 140 senior citizens groups.

About 30 persons in Occidental's Medicare administration department currently participate in the speakers bureau program. All are sent out at least once a month, usually in groups of two or three, to address senior citizens groups, church groups, workshops etc.

In December, bureau members were invited to Leisure World in Laguna Hills, Calif., to appear on a live television program, "You and Your Health," which is sent over closed circuit to the retirement community's 20,000 residents. In addition to their prepared presentation, they also answered questions phoned in by viewers.

Members also have been asked to help train volunteers to work at community multi-purpose centers such as the Outreach Line recently established at the Inglewood, Calif., Senior Center.

During the five-day training period, Occidental employees worked with volunteers at the Inglewood center for four days and then brought them into the Los Angeles - based company's home office for an orientation session.

"Outreach programs such as this are very helpful," Mills said. "They provide people with a place in their own community to go for help with Medicare questions or problems."

"And if their problems are too complicated for the volunteers, the volunteers can use a special number to call one of our Medicare workers assigned to handle such special cases," Mills said.

"Our ultimate goal is to help the beneficiaries by explaining a program that is vital to their existence."

Mills added, "We also are educating ourselves in the virtue of human concern to preserve human dignity." The program has produced some side effects that have made it possible for Occidental to improve its claims handling procedures. For example, since the program went into effect, fewer claims have been received with improperly or incompletely filled out forms. And the number of letters and telephone calls for basic information about Medicare has been dramatically reduced.

To contact Occidental's Medicare Speakers Bureau, call (213) 742-2523.

Occidental Life, a Transamerica company, is North America's ninth leading life insurer in terms of its more than $51 billion of life insurance in force.

New solar hotlines initiated

The California Department of Consumer Affairs, in cooperation with the State Energy Commission, has begun a program to mediate solar and insulation complaints. To register complaints or receive solar or insulation information, consumers can call a toll-free hotline (800-952-5567) during the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Staff in the Solar/Insulation Unit will be working closely with related licensing boards in the department — particularly the Contractor's State License Board — to help expedite the complaint resolution process.

Consumer education materials are also being developed to inform the public of solar energy and insulation technologies, including information on purchasing, selecting a contractor, and complaint resolution.

As part of the project, the unit will examine solar energy and insulation advertisements, require substantiation, and take necessary legal action against individuals and companies that abuse the public trust. Consumers are urged to participate by bringing to the unit's attention advertisements which appear false or misleading.

The Solar/Insulation Complaint Line is intended as a consumer resource for solar and insulation information and complaint handling; it has not been established as a general energy information line. For general questions, the following information centers are available:

— National Solar, Heating and Cooling Information Center, P.O. Box 1607, Rockville, MD 20850. Toll-free (800) 523-2929.

— Energy Information Center, 215 Fremont St., San Francisco, CA 95111. (415) 556-7328.

— California State Energy Commission, 1111 Howe Ave., Sacramento, CA 95825. Toll-free (800) 852-7516.
